AGENDA ITEM: Approval of Middle Grades CTE and Career Pathways Grant

Prepared by: Liz Metzger

X_ Consent
___ Information Only
___ Discussion/Action

Board Date: May 18, 2011

Background Information

The Chico Unified School District has submitted an application to the California Department of Education (CDE) for a Middle Grades CTE and Career Pathways grant. The grant would establish an eighth grade Digital Media and Design elective, which would introduce students to career pathways within the Information Technology, Marketing, and Arts, Media and Entertainment industry sectors. The course will be developed by counselors and teachers from each of the seven secondary schools, and will be piloted at Bidwell in spring, 2012. A second version of the course, which will be held outside the traditional school day, will also be developed and piloted in spring 2012. Depending on the success of the pilot, the course will be offered at Marsh in fall, 2012, and at Chico Junior in 2012 or 2013.

The grant requires local board approval. However, because of the short timeframe we had in which to apply, the CDE consultant for this program said that it is acceptable to have the local board review after submission. A copy of the grant narrative and budget are attached.

Education Implications

The National High School Center reports that more students fail ninth grade than any other grade (Multiple Pathways for Student Success, CDE, September 2010). High school staff has been studying ninth grade transition and ways to support students academically. By implementing this course at all three junior highs, we hope to build in another level of support for students that will help them be more prepared to succeed in high school and beyond. We also hope that this will strengthen the vertical articulation between junior high and high school CTE programs.

Fiscal Implications

No impact to the general fund. Grant funding ($150,000 for one year) would pay for a team of elective teachers and counselors to develop the course during summer and fall, 2011, and pilot the class at Bidwell in spring, 2012. Grant funds would also fund a computer lab at each middle school site. When the course is developed, it can be taught as a regular elective within the school day.
Career Technical Education, Career Pathways, Sequencing and Articulation

The Chico Unified School District (CUSD), located in the northern Sacramento Valley, serves approximately 13,000 K-12 students in twenty schools, including three junior highs (grades 7-8), two comprehensive high schools of approximately two thousand students each, and two alternative high schools (one internal charter and one continuation high school). The comprehensive high schools have well-established CTE programs that include participation in collaborative structures with business and postsecondary institutions. While there have been attempts to offer introductory CTE courses in the middle school, CTE alignment between middle and high school generally remains weak; as a result, students are not transitioning to high school and into CTE courses and pathways as successfully as they should. To address this issue, all seven secondary schools in the CUSD, in collaboration with Butte Community College and with Butte County ROP, are pleased to jointly submit this application for a middle schools CTE grant.

1. CTE course, sector and pathway addressed and an explanation of why chosen:

We will use grant funding to design and implement an eighth grade Digital Media and Design course that introduces students to career pathways within the Information Technology industry sector (Media Support Services, Programming and Systems Development), with further pathway connections to both Marketing, Sales and Service (e-commerce and entrepreneurship pathways), and Arts, Media and Entertainment (Media and Design Arts). At the same time, we will redesign our existing high school business pathway so that students can transition easily into a workplace in which e-commerce, telecommuting, cloud computing, and advanced multimedia production are increasingly common.

We selected Information Technology based on needs identified by our business and industry partners (see attached letters), student interest, and an analysis of labor market information. Additional impetus for our efforts comes from the Chico Economic Planning Corporation (CEPCO), a privately-funded organization designed to create new jobs in Chico by helping to retain and expand existing businesses and attract new business to the area. In particular, CEPCO’s Tech Group (of which the PV principal is a member) is working to meet the needs of today’s technology employers by growing our local talent base and providing a direct link for students from local higher education to employment. Recent discussions at Tech Group meetings have focused on the need to better prepare K-12 students for 21st century careers and education through greater collaboration among K-12 teachers, higher education, and industry.

The choice of industry sector and pathways is also based on labor market information and employment trends. The California CTE Framework in 2007 noted that not only does this sector contain some of the fastest-growing occupations, but that IT crosses all industry sectors. That assertion is borne out by the most recent Employment Development Department statistics, which project a 50% increase in the number of network systems and data communications analysts between 2008 and 2018, a 20.9% increase in computer programmers and computer specialists, and a 25.8% increase in computer software engineers. Occupations in arts, entertainment and media are projected to increase by 8.3% overall by 2018, with film and video editors increasing by 10.2% and media and communication workers by 10.1%.

2. Eighth grade CTE course enrollment projections, one-year and three-year:

We will develop the semester-long course during the summer and fall of 2011 and pilot two sections in the spring, serving 70 eighth graders at Bidwell Junior. One of these sections will be taught during the school day, and will replace an existing Advanced Computers elective. The second section will be offered to students during out-of-school hours, in our after-school program or a combination of after-school and online. Having these two delivery models will allow us to reach more students and minimize the impact on other elective courses—an important consideration because eighth graders only have one elective period. During fall 2012, we will increase the numbers served at Bidwell (two courses each semester) and implement a section at Marsh. During year three, we will expand to Chico Junior High as well as increase the number of sections offered at Marsh. At this point, we will be serving 840 students per year—virtually the entire district eighth grade population.

3. Role and contributions of business / employers:

We are fortunate to have strong support from local business and employers in our existing career pathway programs. These partners have been pivotal in helping us identify the need for pathways in Information Technology and multimedia as a means of preparing students for success in the workplace and in postsecondary education. They will continue to support our efforts by providing externships for teachers of the junior high courses, helping them become proficient in the CTE content they will be teaching; acting as guest speakers for students, helping them learn in more detail about career options in these industry sectors; and providing field trip, job shadowing, internship and mentorship experiences for students. Partners will also work with the curriculum design team to ensure that the eighth grade course to be designed includes opportunities for applied, contextual learning that links to real-world careers. Letters from four of our business partners speak to the specific support they will provide; other partners have been involved with our existing pathways, and will also contribute significantly to our planning.

4. High school involvement in CTE course development:

The timing of this grant could not have been better in terms of generating active and meaningful participation from high schools. For the past two years, high school staff have been focused on improving the transition to ninth grades. Twenty staff members from both PV and CHS attended a Freshman Transition Initiative workshop in fall, 2010. Chico High intends to pilot a freshman transition course in fall, 2011, while Pleasant Valley has already implemented three as a part of its CPA. Our course, emphasizing career exploration, introduction to career pathways, and preparation for success in ninth grade, will complement high school transition efforts. High school staff will be involved in the following ways:

- A counselor and an elective teacher from each high school will work with junior high counselors and teachers throughout the funding year to develop this course.
- Three of the four high school principals have already taken part in meetings and discussions with middle school principals, the ROP director, and district staff to discuss this project; the fourth principal is also very interested in being involved. All four high school administrators will continue to be involved in planning and implementation.
- High school CTE teachers and students will provide “Showcase Days” to introduce middle school students to the pathways available at each high school.

5. Articulation and sequencing of career development, CTE experiences, class articulation, and entry into high school programs of study:

Our new Digital Media and Design course will have three central components. These components will work together to promote the following:
a) CTE content (promotes CTE experiences, class development). Students will receive at least 45 hours of CTE content primarily focused on information technology pathways. The course will be structured in a “wheel” format, offering 2-3 week explorations of pathways within the information technology, marketing, and arts, media and entertainment industry sectors. Examples include multimedia production, computer programming, internet sales and marketing, internet web/radio/video, online news and journalism, webpage design, and audio / video production. Partners in business and industry, Butte College, Chico State, ROCP and the high schools, will provide input into the final course content and curriculum. As a part of each unit, industry partners will serve as guest speakers or co-teachers, providing information about the career possibilities in that field. Each unit will also culminate with a project, offering students a real-world application for their learning.

b) Career Guidance and Exploration (promotes articulation and sequencing of career development): Another 45 hours will be devoted to activities that help students begin to focus on their future, as described further below (#7). The emphasis for students will be on the process of identifying a career, taking into account who they are and what they want, rather than committing to a specific career. Understanding this process is far more important now, when workers statistically change jobs every three years¹, than it was a generation ago.

c) Showcase Days (promotes entry into high school programs of study): Showcase Days will give students a preview of the career pathways in operation at each high school (see chart, question #6 below). Each pathway will be showcased separately, with the days spread out over the semester. Showcases may be “live,” with visits to the high school, or may be via Skype or videoconference. In either case, middle school students will interact with high school students and their teachers, ask questions, and get more information about each pathway, and thus be able to make more informed decisions about the high school and pathway that is best for them.

6. Ninth and tenth grade CTE courses, CPAs, and pathways available to students:

Students will have multiple options in ninth and tenth grade to continue to engage and support their career education planning and experiences no matter which high school they attend. CTE pathways by school are listed in the chart below; a complete list of CTE courses and pathways is included in the supporting documents. In addition, Pleasant Valley High School has a California Partnership Academy in Child Development, Education, and Human Services. Bold italics indicate courses or pathways that are in the industry sectors students will explore in the eighth grade course. However, clearly the focus on technology and digital media will provide a solid foundation for many of the pathways and courses listed below.

Career Exploration and Planning

7. Student discovery, exploration, and experience with various career options:

Consistent with the recommendations in the CDE’s Multiple Pathways to Student Success (p. 92), we will design a career exploration component of our course that has four basic components. Activities will be carefully planned so that each component will give students a look at a different career, and sometimes a different industry sector.

- Guest speakers, field trips, job shadowing, and interviews that provide students with first-hand exposure to careers.
- Curriculum games and activities that give students an opportunity to explore careers in an in-class setting (e.g., The Real Game California)
- Application of the curriculum learned to real-world problems
- Development of educational and career plans that are designed to be revised over time.

8. Assessment of interests, aptitudes, and abilities:

Online assessments of interest, aptitude and abilities will provide a starting point for students’ career planning process, and will help them better focus their subsequent career exploration. Specific resources will be identified during the planning months, but will include CalCRN resources such as California Career Zone, which provides a range of assessments, and the California Career Planning Guide. Our Digital Media and Design course will be taught in a computer lab, making it easy for students to take online interest and aptitude assessments.

9. Flexible, detailed career and education plan:

The philosophy behind our approach to engaging students in developing a detailed and flexible career and education plan is best expressed by this quote from the California Career Planning Guide: "A career is a lifetime journey of building and making good use of your skills, knowledge, and experiences. It is the total of all events and relationships in our lives: family, friends, education, work, and leisure activities."2 Students must first understand who they are, and what their needs and interests are; they will then learn that career planning is a process they will go through a number of times during their lives. Students will work through the assessments, activities, and exercises in the Guide, culminating in the initial draft of a plan. “Initial draft” means just that: students will understand that their plan is a work in progress, subject always to revision as their needs, interests, and situations change. We will explore resources such as Career Cruising which enable students to house their plan electronically, facilitating regular modifications and updates.

10. How resources disseminated by CalCRN will be utilized:

We will use California Career Zone as part of the assessment of students’ aptitudes, interests and abilities. The California Career Planning Guide will be a central component of our career exploration and guidance curriculum. We have budgeted $450 per site to purchase The Real Game California to use as a part of our course; Sandra Villasenor, the counselor at Bidwell, has been trained in that program. A computer lab will be established at each site for the course; this will facilitate student access to and use of online CalCRN resources during class time. Students will generally utilize these resources with guidance from their teacher or counselor; however, students in the out-of-school-time course may also access resources from home.

11. How the project will incorporate the CTE Foundation Standards:

All eleven foundation standards will be incorporated into the Digital Media and Design course. While the curriculum will be fully fleshed out during the summer and fall, examples of projects that will incorporate these standards include interviews to gain information about specific careers, followed by a presentation to the class (Communications 2.3, Career Planning 3.1, 3.2). Other standards will be incorporated as part of coursework or projects assigned: for example, Technology 4.2 as well as Technical Knowledge and Skills and Demonstration/Application will be covered as students learn to manipulate and create various digital projects.
Because much of the course will be project-based, students will be called on Problem Solving / Critical Thinking, Responsibility / Flexibility, and Leadership / Teamwork. The CTE teacher will also work with content teachers to use common language and constructs as a means to reinforce Academic standards. The planning team will use the CTE Framework and CTE Standards documents in planning a curriculum that systematically addresses all foundation standards with pathway standards.

12. CTE pathway introduction as part of career exploration and self-assessment:

The interview mentioned above is one means of introducing CTE pathways: as students present the results of their research, the teacher can help the class identify the pathway that would lead to that career. Showcase Days (see #5) are another means of introduction to career pathways, and in particular those pathways which students can enter the following year. Resources such as The Real Game California are a third method that will be employed.

13. Number of eighth graders in career planning and exploration (1 and 3 year):

Because the course will include career planning and exploration activities, the number of students involved will be identical to the numbers in #2, above: 70 during spring semester, 2012, increasing to 420 per semester / 840 per year by the end of the third year (2013-14).

School-wide and System-wide Planning and Support

14. How this CTE course and entry into CTE pathways will be sustained:

The funding we request will jumpstart a course that will be self-sustaining after the first year. The cost of implementing Digital Media and Design lies in the development of the course, the purchase of hardware necessary at each site to allow students to explore information technology pathways, and externships to provide the instructor at each site with CTE experience. We have budgeted for all these items in the first year. When that year is over, the course will take the place of a technology elective at each site, and will thus be supported by site funds.

Instructors will receive ongoing training as needed through site Title II funds; Butte County ROCP has also committed $25,000 to pay for externships after summer, 2012. After-school funds will support the out-of-school-time course. In addition, working with high school staff in course development will spur the redesign of existing, outdated business classes at both high schools, as well as the development of a Media and Design Arts pathway at Chico High.

<td>Extra Assignment: Planning Team: A planning team, comprised of one counselor and one CTE teacher from each of the seven secondary sites, will meet for two weeks during summer, 2011, to begin the planning process, identify the components to be included in the class, and begin to design both the content and career exploration components of the course. During June, 2012, the team will meet for one more week to assess the successes and challenges of the pilot course, and prepare to implement at the other two middle schools. The team will meet for part of the time all together; at other times, they may divide into subgroups to complete specific tasks (e.g., develop career planning curriculum to present to the group). Extra assignment paid at district-established rate of $100 per day; $100/day x 15 days x 14 = $21,000.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Release Time (Substitute Costs): Planning Team:
During the 2011-12 year, the planning team will continue to meet as a whole group or in subgroups to continue developing and refining curriculum and preparing for the implementation of two sections of the new course (one during the school day and one outside of school hours). During the fall, team will meet up to two full days per month; in the spring, 2012, the team will meet one day per month to monitor course progress and make any necessary mid-course corrections. 15 days x $85/day (sub rate in CUSD) x 14 team members = $16,660.

Externships:
Grant funds will support the teachers who will be teaching the new course in a summer externship, designed to enhance their CTE skills related to the content to be taught. Externships will be with our business and industry partners. The Bidwell Junior High teacher (who will pilot the course in spring, 2012) will take part in the externship in summer, 2011; the other two teachers (Marsh and Chico Junior) will take part in summer, 2012, as they will be piloting in subsequent years. Externships are paid at the rate used by Butte County ROP: $47/hour for up to 40 hours. $47 x 3 teachers x 40 hours = $5,640.

Choosing A Textbook for AP World History

David Dorman
Manhasset High School

The choice of a new textbook for use with my AP World History class was one of the toughest decisions of my teaching career. I had been teaching for 38 years and had been teaching AP European History for 15 of those years. Further, I had developed a two-year honors world history program and had been teaching it for ten years when AP World History came into being. I had selected many textbooks over the years, including three for my AP classes. Yet without a doubt, the AP World History course—with its emphasis on patterns of changes and continuities, globalization, and cultural interactions—begged for a new textbook. I took the responsibility for its selection very seriously.

I personally examined every new book that claimed to be a world history text. This meant reading many chapters from each, comparing the content of each for specific topics that I picked at random, and assessing the overall pros and cons of each one. What follows is an account of my agonizing year-long quest to find the right text for my class.

The first order of business was to gather together the emerging crop on world history texts. They included the texts by Bulliet, Bentley & Ziegler, Duiker & Spielvogel, Spodek, and Stearns. In addition to personally reading sections of each, I asked the reading specialist in my school to do a readability study on each one. Each of them proved to be acceptable in terms of vocabulary, sentence structure, and length of paragraphs. Our reading specialist handed back the books saying they all seemed appropriate for my upcoming AP classes in world history.

In June of 2001, I attended the WHA conference held at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. There I attended as many discussions, workshops, and lectures as I could on the subject of AP World History. In fact, there was even a special meeting designed to focus of the question of textbooks. I spoke with authors, scholars, and teachers in order to gain insight into the idiosyncrasies of each textbook.

The next test to which I submitted the texts was to give copies of each of them to several students. The students selected included boys and girls, top students and weaker students, ninth graders and tenth graders. They were instructed to read sections from each text. The selections were carefully chosen so as to include most of the chronological periods of study into which the AP course is divided, as well as several of the overarching themes of the course. I also asked them to focus on the maps, artwork, and graphics they encountered in their reading. They each submitted a one-page summary of their analysis and we conducted a round-table discussion of each book when they had completed their tasks. Student input helped me to whittle the list of choices from five to two. The "survivors" were the Stearns text, World Civilizations: The Global Experience, third edition, and the Duiker and Spielvogel text, World History, third edition.

The process was repeated with different students. Further, I enlisted the help of a parent of one of my students. He is a physician who specializes in tropical diseases and had lived in eastern Africa for... several years. In addition, he had written books on Africa. I asked him to examine the "coverage" of Africa in both texts.

The response from the students was clear. Duiker & Spielvogel was deemed to be more clearly written. Our discussions revealed that what the students meant was that the narrative flowed more easily, and when they had completed reading a section of text, they were confident that they understood the material. The Stearns text, they felt, was not more difficult to read, but when completed, had raised more questions than it answered. The parent who reviewed only the African and African related material concluded that both texts discussed essentially the same things, but noted that they were organized differently. His personal preference was the Stearns text.

Thinking the whole process over in my mind, discussing it with colleagues, and closely following the lively discussion of texts and text selections on the AP World History Listserv led me to some conclusions. First of all, the Stearns text is not only a world history text; it is grounded in the AP syllabus and organized accordingly. It is also, however, clearly a college-level text. My students, while taking a college-level course, are in fact in high school. Secondly, the Stearns text focuses on patterns of change throughout world history and assumes that the reader knows some of the underlying historical narrative that drives the forces that shape such patterns. This explains the fact that the parent textbook examiner preferred the Stearns text while my students opted for Duiker & Spielvogel.

Further thought on my part made it clear that while the primary criticism of Duiker & Spielvogel is that it is too Eurocentric, this is a function of organization rather than content. In the end, I chose the Duiker & Spielvogel text because I wanted my students to have a more readable narrative. As for the organization and the attention to the AP World History themes and habits of mind, I reasoned that it was my responsibility to convey those to my students. The text would present the historical narrative, and together my students and I would develop the skills of historical analysis and synthesis. This would occur through our class discussions and seminar groups that would revolve around a close reading of the Duiker & Spielvogel text along with selected primary source documents. In addition, I decided to use Stearns for myself, and at times have included ideas from some of the In Depth essays as launching points for classroom analysis of specific topics. I have also used some ideas from the Bentley text in my class.

Thus did I begin my first year of AP World History in September 2001. I knew at the time that the text I chose was not the text of choice for most AP World History teachers. Nevertheless, I felt that I had done my homework regarding the selection, and was confident I had made the right choice for my students and for me.

The school year was filled with more than the usual amount of interruptions and distractions. The attacks of September 11 hit my school and its community (located as it is in New York state) especially hard. Nevertheless, we persevered, progressed and moved on to complete the year's work and prepare for the first AP World History Examination.

During the year, I grew more and more confident that I had made the right choice for my students. They said the text was a good read, and that the combination of supplementary readings and class presentations by students and by me had made the patterns and themes of world history comprehensible. Moreover, I came to realize that the third edition of Duiker & Spielvogel is strong in an area where I am weak: gender issues. Gender issues are a major theme in the AP course, and Duiker & Spielvogel deal with the subject well by integrating the material thoroughly into the text rather than sideling it to special boxes.

Although the process I underwent in determining which textbook to select for my AP world history students was lengthy and at times agonizing, the hard work paid off. At the end of the year, on the first AP world history exam ever administered, 100% of my students (in three classes) earned a three or better, and 80% earned a 4 or a 5.

I do realize, of course, that success in teaching isn't just about the text. In my high school, I am fortunate to be able to teach world history over a two-year period, which allows me to take the time to present selected topics in depth. In addition, I think that most experienced teachers who understand the philosophy and content of world history could probably work successfully with any of the texts I reviewed. Nevertheless, after having explored all of the possibilities for myself, I continue to feel confident that the foundation text my students are reading is one that will support their study—and understanding—of world history.

Biographical Note: David Dorman has taught history in Manhasset High School, in Manhasset, NY for 42 years. He holds a doctorate from NYU, has written articles on both teaching and on history, and has taught World History to teachers throughout the USA on behalf of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program in World History. He also serves as faculty consultant to the College Board in World History.

Notes

1. R.R. Palmer, et al's A History of the Modern World (Knopf) was the text of choice when I was teaching the course to seniors, but I switched to Chambers, and then to McKay, Need Publisher A History of World Societies, when the course was moved into the tenth grade.

PROPOSED AGENDA ITEM: Academy For Change General Waiver Request

☐ Consent

☐ Information Only                      Board Date: May 18, 2011

☐ Discussion/Action

Background Information

California code of Regulations 48661a states: “A community day school shall not be situated on the same site as an elementary, middle, junior high, comprehensive senior high, opportunity, or continuation school, except as follows: (1) When the governing board of a school district with 2,500 or fewer units of average daily attendance reported for the most recent second principal apportionment certifies by a two-thirds vote of its membership that satisfactory alternative facilities are not available for a community day school.”

In May, 2010, the CUSD Board of Education directed staff to submit a waiver that would allow the district to house the Academy for Change on a shared campus with Fair View. The waiver is subject to annual renewal. Thus, for reasons explained in more detail in the attached waiver, we are once again requesting that the board certify that satisfactory alternative facilities are not available for the Academy for Change so that we may submit another waiver for Fair View and AFC to continue to share a campus.

Education Implications

Procedures and precautions will be in place to ensure the safety and protection of all students on the campus. Staff support and campus local may assist with a smooth student transition from one alternative program to another.

Fiscal Implications

Combining the two programs on one campus will save the cost of the lease for the current AFC campus. Downsizing staff at both sites will provide a cost savings to the general fund.

1. When the governing board of a school district with 2,500 or fewer units of average daily attendance reported for the most recent second principal apportionment certified by a two-thirds vote of its membership that satisfactory alternative facilities are not available for a community day school.

2. A certification make pursuant to this section is valid for not more than one school year and may be renewed by a subsequent two-thirds vote of the governing board.

7. Desired outcome/rationale. Describe briefly the circumstances that brought about the request and why the waiver is necessary to achieve improved student performance and/or streamline or facilitate local agency operations. If more space is needed, please attach additional pages.

Chico Unified School District applied for and received a waiver for Academy for Change (AFC), CUSD's community day school to be housed at the same site as Fair View, the continuation high school and Center for Alternative Learning (CAL), the opportunity school. The premise for the request 2010-11 was due to CUSD's negatively certified budget, the need to cut costs and to consolidate programs. CUSD currently has a qualified budget, however, three-year projections indicate that negative certification is, once again, looming on the horizon. Additionally, CUSD continues to receive facilities requests from dependent and independent charters. Thus, there is a continued need to house AFC on the Fair View/CAL campus for the 2011-12 school year and beyond.

Housing AFC on the Fair View/CAL campus has also afforded students additional transition opportunities between alternative education programs as well as the junior high and comprehensive high schools. The coexistence of these schools on the same campus has been very successful and without incident. The need for these schools to be housed at the same facility is clearly evident.

CUSD has demonstrated the need for and values the community day school program and would like to continue to house AFC on the Fair View/CAL campus. CUSD realizes the need for a community day school to maintain adequate separation from existing school programs. The layout of the Fair View campus (see map, attached) allowed for such separation. Two rooms on the school site are set apart from the main Fair View campus. These two rooms have been fenced to fully separate the two schools. The fencing encompasses the classrooms and allows for a single entrance and exit point for AFC students. Additional precautions have been implemented by structuring different arrival and departure times for the schools. Each school has its own staffing for instruction and supervision.

Housing AFC on the Fair View/CAL campus has been a successful endeavor. AFC students transition back to other school sites once they have fulfilled their expulsions requirements. Many of these students transition to Fair View to complete their schooling and/or may attend Fair View for a short time and then return to one of the comprehensive high schools to complete their education. This arrangement provides a full spectrum of support for students so they do not "fall through the cracks".

The Chico Unified staff is hopeful that this waiver will be approved for the 2011-12 school year.

8. Demographic Information:

The Chico Unified School District has a student population of 12,239 students (2010-2011) and is located in a suburban university town in Butte County. The district has three secondary alternative schools. Fair View, a continuation high school, has a student population of 257; CAL, a continuation middle school, has a population of 30 (2010-11); and the Academy for Change (AFC), a community day school, serves 91 students in 2010-2011.

AGENDA ITEM: Options for Balancing Athletic Budgets at Chico High School and Pleasant Valley High School

Prepared by: Bob Feaster, Assistant Superintendent, Human Resources

Board Date: May 18, 2011

Background Information:
On March 2, 2011, a report was presented to the Board addressing funding for high school athletics. Information was provided regarding the income and expenses as well as costs incurred by the District general fund, the Associated Student Body at each school, and the dollars raised and donated as a result of ongoing fundraising efforts by the sports booster organizations at each high school.

The presentation pointed out the fiscal issues facing the athletic programs at both high schools. The committee that presented the report was comprised of parents, booster club members, athletic directors, principals and district staff. The committee, as well as a Board liaison, has continued to meet to further explore options for a balanced athletic budget. Without reductions in expenses and/or increases in income, there will not be sufficient funding to sustain high school athletics in its current form with CUSD for the 2011/12 school year.

On April 20, 2011, an update was provided to the Board regarding this topic. Ideas were proposed to reduce or eliminate transportation costs for next year, a reduction that will likely be offset by the elimination of the transportation fee. Booster club representatives were clear in their intention to continue to raise money to support high school athletics in CUSD, while also stating they can no longer raise funds to support coaches’ stipends. At the April 20, 2011, Board meeting, the Board directed staff to continue work with the committee and return to the Board on May 18, 2011, with options that would result in a balanced budget for the athletic programs at the two comprehensive high schools.

Educational Implications:
There is no doubt that the athletic programs at each high school level are important academically, socially, and emotionally. It is equally clear that athletics is highly valued by the students and staff at all levels as well as by the Board and the community.

Fiscal Implications:
As noted in prior presentations, the current budget for high school athletics is not sustainable. The goal is to have the high school athletic programs operate with balanced budgets. It is likely that each option that is considered to balance athletic budgets will have its own unique educational implications.

Board Date May 18, 2011

Background Information
College Connection is a self-contained, alternative CUSD/Butte College partnership program located on the Butte College campus. The goals of the program are to provide 12th grade students the opportunity to take challenging courses in an enriched learning environment and to assist students in developing the necessary study survival skills to successfully transition to a college environment.

College Connection students take a combination of high school and college courses. Since Butte College follows a different academic calendar than Chico Unified, board approval is necessary for this alternative 179 day student calendar for 2011-2012.

Education Implications
College Connection provides an additional option for students in their senior year of high school.

Board Date: 05/18/2011

Background Information:

The district is required to submit the Third Period Interim Report for 2010-11 to the Butte County Office of Education in May for their review and approval by June 1. This report is a requirement for the Chico Unified School District as a result of our qualified certification. The state requires that the county analyze the district’s projected year end balances and comment on any significant changes.

The Third Interim Report reflects closely the estimated year end financial activity of the district including updated Revenues per allocations and final P2ADA calculations. The district is also required to update the Multi-year budget based on any new assumptions since 2nd Interim.

Education Implications:

School districts that maintain a balanced budget and have adequate reserves are able to provide a broad range of educational programs for their students.

Fiscal Implications:

The enclosed report addresses the changes in income and expenses since the last report presented on March 23, 2010. Those changes are outlined in the narrative section of the report.

Recommendation:

Approve 2010-11 Third Period Interim: Qualified Certification
